

How to Study for Online Classes

1

Practice Self-Discipline

Because you'll be taking class and studying online as an independent student, strong self-discipline is an absolute must for success.

Structure Your Time

Make a weekly schedule, but not just for class. Schedule everything in one place: your study schedule, your work schedule, and time for family and friends.

2

3

Prepare for Varied Learning Styles

You'll want to prepare yourself to engage a variety of learning modalities: video lectures, class projects, gamified scenarios, discussion boards, interactive dashboards and more.

Get Comfortable With Your Technology

You know you'll be studying online, so find a way to access your course content that is comfortable for you and that can quickly become familiar.

4

5

Life Will Get in the Way

Work hard to maintain your schedule, but grant yourself forgiveness if you need to rewatch a particular lecture or pull the occasional all-nighter to keep on track.

Get Support

Self-reliance is a noble goal, but it's also important to enlist aid as needed. Let your family and friends know your plans for studying online, and ask them to provide both accountability and support.

6

7

Don't Lose Sight of Your Goals

Before classes begin, write down all of the reasons you decided to pursue your Online MBA. Your motivation is tied to your success.
